REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Doylestown, September 4.

In convention at Doylestown on Monday about 2,000 Republicans, representing every district in the county, declared for harmony. This they did by nominating the present members of Assembly for that office and Joseph W. Shelly for District Attorney. There was some opposition, but it was not serious from the fact that the opponents of the Assemblymen had no organization. Many districts deemed solidly arrayed against Messrs. Winner, Wilkinson and Edwards turned in for them. The chief figure in the opposition to the Assemblymen was William C. Mayne, of Bristol township, and while Republicans throughout the county no glad that Mr. Mayne is taking an active interest in his party, they felt that he was a little too conspicuous for a new-comer, especially in this particular instance, so they turned him down. There were rather exciting scenes in the convention when Mr. Mayne desired to kill a motion made by Harry J. Shoemaker to the effect that all resolutions be referred to the committee. Mr. Mayne had a resolution to offer, binding the candidates to attend caucus at Harrisburg, but his purpose was defeated and the resolution was not heard of again. The opponents of the Assemblymen presented Calvin S. Heckler, Quakertown; ex-sheriff Alonzo Nicholas, Doylestown, and William C. Mayne, Bristol township, as their candidates. Nicholas was really not a candidate, as he announced publicly in the morning that he would not enter the contest. On Tuesday morning he stated that he was ready to take off his coat and work in every district for the nominees. The three candidates of the Quay faction carried eleven districts as a full ticket, but some of them received complimentary votes as individuals. John L. DuBois, Quay candidate for District Attorney, carried seven districts. Mr. DuBois, it will be remembered, was the author of the Quay circular sent out some time ago. It is believed that most of the Republicans arrayed against the Assemblymen will support them at the polls.

The proceedings were more than usually

F. G. EDWARDS, of Bristol, one of the most successful political organizers in Bucks county.

interesting. The lower end Quayites came to town with fife and drum corps and brass band, but they lacked in numbers and organization compared to the noise they made. However, no fault was found with their effort to carry out what they conceived to be their duty, and many of them confessed that they had mistaken the situation. The most stirring incident occurred when Mayne tried to force his resolution poject. Mahlon H. Stout, of Doylestown, was chairman of the convention, and presented fairly and impatially. Hugh B. Eastburn, of Doylestown, opposed Mr. Mayne in his attitude on the resolution matter, and amid calls and yells from both sides, Mr. Eastburn managed to carry the convention with him.

The appointment of the committee on Resolutions involved a long time and it was after 12 o'clock when the list was completed. The next matter taken up was the nomination of candidates to be voted for by the various districts after the noon adjournment. The following were placed in nomination:

ASSEMBLY.
Upper District.
William P. Winner, Quakertown.
Calvin S. Heckler, Quakertown.
Middle District.
Harry Wilkinson, Solebury.
Alonzo Nicholas, Doylestown.
Lower District.
Frank G. Edwards, Bristol.
William C. Mayne, Bristol township.
PROTHONOTARY.
John G. King, New Britain.
DISTRICT ATTORNEY.
Joseph W. Shelly, Doylestown.
John L. DuBois, Jr., Doylestown.
DIRECTOR OF THE POOR.
William Baum, Bedminster.
JURY COMMISSIONER.
Abel N. Kohl, Nockamixon.
Isaac Kramer, Springfield.
Joseph Sigafoos, Tinicum.

The nominees for Director of the Poor and Prothonotary were nominated by acclamation, having no opponents. The convention then adjourned until 2 o'clock.

The noon recess was an exciting period. It was then that the real situation was to be disclosed by the votes of the various districts. All sorts of rumors were rife concerning the vote in contested districts. The two factions were busy marshalling their forces. How they finally voted appears below. The same big crowd augmented by many spectators from the Democratic party assembled at the court house at 2 o'clock. It was 2.30 o'clock when the count proceeded.

Finally the ballots were counted and resulted in the following votes for each candidate:

ASSEMBLY.
Upper District.

William P. Winner,	145
Calvin S. Heckler,	25
Middle District.
Harry Wilkinson,	138½
Alonzo Nicholas,	32½
Lower District.
Frank G. Edwards,	146
William C. Mayne,	25
DISTRICT ATTORNEY
Joseph W. Shelly,	155
John L. DuBois, Jr.,	16
JURY COMMISSIONER.
Abel N. Kohl,	120
Isaac Kramer,	24
Joseph Sigafoos,	25

The above vote indicated that the present members of Assembly had carried about 67 districts out of the total of 78 and the new nominees about 11. Mr. DuBois got about 7 districts.

Therefore the ticket nominated is as follow[illegible]

The ballots gave Heckler, Nicholas and Mayne, in what might be termed straight Quay tickets, Doylestown borough Third ward, Perkasie, Sellersville, Delaware District of Tinicum, West Bristol township, Tinicum District of Tinicum, Third ward of Quakertown, Attleboro, New Hope, Tullytown and Hulmeville.

As showing an individual preference on the part of voters Nicholas carried Fairhill in Hilltown, Richlandtown, East Springfield, New Britain, Lehnenburg in Durham, (Nicholas ½ vote, Wilkinson ½ vote) East Rockhill and Plumstead East. Nicholas and Wilkinson each had a vote in Tullytown.

Mayne carried Richlandtown and was tie with Edwards in Milford, Roseville District.

Heckler secured the vote of Plumstead East.

DuBois carried Tinicum, Tohickon District; Doylestown township, First and Third wards of Doylestown borough, Bristol township West, Newtown township and Buckingham Middle.

No vote was recorded from Telford borough.

The nominations were made unanimous and the next matter was the presentation of the resolutions by Hugh B. Eastburn, Esq., of Doylestown, chairman of the committee. The resolutions which follow were unanimously adopted and the convention adjourned:

The Republicans of Bucks county in county convention assembled, hereby renew their allegiance to the immortal principles of the Republican party, now, as ever, the champion of civil rights and human liberty.

The administration of President William McKinley marks an era in our national history. It rescued the country from the blighting consequences of Democratic misrule and restored healthful business conditions, thereby securing the blessings of prosperity to both labor and capital. The tariff has been revised upon the lines of protection. The currency of the nation has been placed upon a secure basis. A foreign war, which the dictates of humanity compelled us to wage, has been brought to a successful and glorious termination. Wider fields of opportunity have opened before the nation, and graver responsibilities have been imposed upon the American people. Into the hands of the Republican party alone may be safely committed the destinies of the Republic.

We denounce as insincere and crafty the attitude of the Democratic party. It seeks by a false cry to deceive and mislead the voter. It denies that the currency question is an issue, while it reaffirms in its platform the pernicious doctrine of free silver and presents again as its candidate the most conspicuous advocate of that delusive heresy. It masquerades as the champion of equal rights for the people of Porto Rico and the Philippines, while by violence and under the cruelest forms of law it has deprived the great body of negro citizens of the United States of the right of franchise, which is guaranteed under the Constitution. It professes to fear for the safety of the Republic, while in the State of Kentucky, by ingenious and iniquitous legislation, it has overthrown popular government and deprived the majority of their rights under the Constitution and the law. We believe that no greater peril can menace the nation than the return of the Democratic party to power. We recognize, therefore, the supreme importance of the continued control of Congress by the Republican party, and we pledge to Hon. Irving P. Wanger our earnest and sincere support in his campaign for re-election.

We hereby instruct the candidates for members of the Legislature this day nominated to use all honorable efforts to secure the appropriation and payment to the school districts of the State the sum of $5,550,000 annually.

We demand the enforcement of all laws relating to the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine to the end that our dairy interests may be fully protected from an unfair and ruinous competition.

We favor the enactment and enforcement of such laws as are necessary to secure a full and free exercise of the right of franchise by every voter entitled thereto and preserve the ballot-box from fraud and corruption, and we instruct our representatives this day nominated to give to such measures their cordial support in the next Legislature.

Believing that the result of Republican ascendancy can best be preserved by a Republican administration and that the great principles of protection to American industry, honest money, a pure ballot and equal rights for all, white or black, native or foreign born, can only be maintained by the great party that has battled for and secured them, we cordially endorse the platform adopted by the Philadelphia convention and the nomination of the distinguished statesman and the gallant soldier for the Presidency and Vice Presidency, William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt, and we pledge to them and the ticket this day nominated our hearty support and most earnest endeavor.

The resolutions offered by Mr. Mayne in the committee were as follows:

Whereas, The Republican electors of Bucks county in convention assembled, behold with grave concern, the spectacle of the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, of with its vast industrial, commercial, agricultural, mining, manufacturing and manifold interests, without its equal representation in the halls of the National Congress, guaranteed to it by the Federal Constitution, when its meagre population and interests with its present status, were incomparable.

And Whereas, We believe that such a condition is at variance with the principles of a government by the people, and for the people, and was unforeseen by the framers of our organic law, and that such inequality in representation must startle the conscience of every elector in this Commonwealth, who believes in a government by and for the people.

And Whereas, We believe that the time has arrived, when a patient people can no longer withhold their protest to the continuance of such a condition, and demand without further delay or evasion, that the Legislature of this Commonwealth shall secure for this Commonwealth said rights of equal representation, and to this end we demand the attention of the nominees of this convention for the Legislature to the rules and regulations of the Republican party.

And Therefore, be it, and it is hereby resolved, That as a condition precedent to the nomination of candidates for the Legislature by the delegates to this convention that said candidates shall and will give their written consent to the observance of said rules and regulations of the Republican party, to the chairman of this convention, and therein formally agree to attend the party caucus at Harrisburg, and then and therein vote for a candidate to the United States Senate, and thereafter vote for the selection by the majority in said caucus in the Legislature of this Commonwealth at its next session, regularly or specially convened for the purpose of electing a United States Senator for the State of Pennsylvania, and that they will also attend the party caucus of the members of the State Legislature, when called for the purpose of organizing the House, and abide by and support the will of the majority in said caucus.

And be it, and it is hereby further resolved, That we declare and maintain that the test of allegiance to the Republican party is in the support of its principles by its electors and the observance of its rules and regulations by its candidates.

And be it and it is hereby further resolved, That the action of the majority is the arbitrament of all organizations, social, religious and political, and we demand its observance by each and every candidate who accepts a nomination by the delegates of this convention.

The proceedings of the convention were conceded to be fair and regular, and it is believed that those who opposed the members of the Assembly will go to the polls in November united in support of the whole ticket.

TULLYTOWN.

The excursion of the Tullytown Castle, K. G. E., to Atlantic City was the occasion of quite an outpouring of the residents of Tullytown and vicinity. Nearly three hundred people took advantage of this opportunity to visit Atlantic City. The day was fully enjoyed by the Eagles and their friends, and the expression of gratification at the management of the affair were numerous. The members of the committee themselves were disappointed in the number of excursionists as it was expected that it would run between four and five hundred. Better commence earlier in the season another year and the attendance will probably be much larger than last Saturday.

Hardly had the Saturday excursionists become rested before some of them were called upon to go to Doylestown to Monday's convention. As an object lesson, the convention presented the most glaring example of the necessity for district representation at the county convention. In place of an orderly gathering, a noisy crowd participated in the affair, while a still greater crowd made merry down town. But to return to the point. On Saturday a simple appeal from the decision of the chair was refused and after Mr. Mayne had protested it was necessary that Mr. Eastburn should make a speech of apology for the chairman and explained that this departure from ordinary parliamentary usage was due to the mass system which made the observance of ordinary parliamentary rules unpracticable. That Mr. Mayne was clearly within his rights in this instance there is no doubt but Mr. Eastburn's contention as to the impracticability of an appeal was sustained, as it should have been under the circumstances on the ground of expediency. There is an absurd practice under the present system that should be done away with in any case; that is the naming of the members of the committee on resolutions and the place and time of meeting of the various delegations by the county committeemen in open session. This occupies the greater part of the time of the first session, and is of no interest to the convention generally. The same result could be attained and much time saved by having this work done before the morning session, report being made to the county chairman by each committeeman upon his arrival.

A very pretty little wedding in which Tullytown people were interested, took place a week ago Wednesday at the home of the bride's brother, John Rose, 121 S. Clinton avenue, Trenton. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside near North Penn Junction, Philadelphia, Mr. Davis being employed by the P. R. R. near that station. The guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Jacob R. Davis, Elizabeth Davis, Mr. and Mrs. John Rose, Ellie Hazard, Mrs. John Hall, Rellu Hall, Laura Hall, J. Vincent Hall. George Ingram, and was followed by a wedding breakfast which was arranged by caterers Manning & Brink, of Trenton.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at one of the prominent boarding houses at Tullytown on Monday evening. A crowd of jolly serenaders came from Trenton with musical instruments to entertain two of their old friends and companions who are now employed at the Floral Exchange at Edgely. Dancing, singing and games of all sorts were indulged in and also cracking of jokes and telling yarns about old times. They departed at a medium late hour, declaring they had a fine time, and thanking their hostess for her hospitality in supplying them with an abundance of refreshments.

A picnic for the benefit of the Christian Church Sunday School will be held Saturday, September 8, on the church lawn, followed in the evening from 5 to 8 o'clock by a moonlight tea. Manning & Brink's ice cream and other refreshments will be on sale. Twenty cents will be charged for the supper.

To put the brake on the wagon going down the hill is a help to the horse, when the wagon is heavily loaded. But what driver would think of applying the brake to a loaded wagon going up hill? If he did, his sensible horses would probably balk. Many a man is in the condition of pulling a load up hill with the brake set against him. When his stomach is out of order, and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition impaired in their functions, a friction is set up which has to be overcome in addition to the performance of daily duties. A foul stomach makes a foggy brain, and the man with a disordered stomach has often to grope his way through the day's business like a man in a fog. He forgets appointments. Problems seem presented to his mind "wrong end to." This condition is entirely remedied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It puts the stomach and digestive and nutritive system into a condition of perfect health, and gives a [illegible] clear brain, a steady hand and a light st[illegible] for the day's duties. When constipat[illegible] clogs the channels of the body, [illegible] Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will work [illegible] effectual cure of that disastrous disease.

Progress in politics depends upon organization.

As usual, the Democracy enters the campaign mighty long on precept and dreadfully short on example.

Senator Penrose will now undoubtedly give the map another swipe for the purpose of removing any lingering traces of Bucks county. It is well.

There is one proposition that the free traders cannot answer, and do not seem to understand; it is the enormous and unprecedented increase of our export business. All of them said that kind of thing was impossible under a protective tariff.

It is doubtful if there was a Republican in Doylestown on Monday who was in full possession of his mental factilities, who did not perfectly realize the dire necessity of a change in the party rules which will permit of a different method of making nominations.

All true Republicans should join hands now and unite for the election of the whole ticket. By an overwhelming majority a county ticket has been nominated. All differences were fought out in convention—the time and place where all factional strife should end.

In 1896 Colonel Watterson described Mr. Bryan as "a dishonest dodger, a daring adventurer and a political fakir." Futhermore, he expressed his disgust by going to Paris and remaining until after the election. So it will be perceived what an unpleasant dose the Colonel is trying to swallow this year.

"What I denounce," said William J. Bryan when a Congressman, "is a protective tariff; it is false economy and the most vicious political principle that has ever cursed this country." Since then the Gold Standard was the most vicious, and now Imperialism is the most vicious principal that ever cursed this country.

The Hon. George S. Boutwell, most prominent of all the Anti-Imperialists, so-called, thinks that the financial panic due to the common dread of Bryan's election would only be a short one. We also recall the case of the dear Old Hoss that died of the diet of ten-penny nails just as he was getting used to them.

The resolutions adopted on Monday had the true ring. The nominees for the Assembly were instructed to use all honorable efforts to secure the appropriation and payment to the school districts of the State the sum of $5,500,000 annually. The enforcement of all laws relating to the manufacture and sale of oleomargerine was demanded to the end that our dairy interests may be fully protected from ruinous competition. The enactment of laws were favored for the security of a full and free exercise of the right of franchise by every voter entitled thereto and the preservation of the ballot box from fraud and corruption.

In 1896 the Populists, which formed the major portion of the fusion forces, carried the state of Washington for Bryan by a plurality of over 11,000 votes. But things are different now. Four years of unprecedented prosperity have knocked the bottom out of all of the former Populistic arguments and there is only a remnant left of the 3-tailed party. The Tacoma Ledger says "The most ferocious of the original Populist leaders have come into the possession of changes of underclothing, and it is related of several of them that for the first time in their lives they have acquired bank accounts. They are prosperous and are at a loss to know what to kick about."

The scheme to capture Bucks county in the name of Quay was an artful dodge. The Quay mask was used for the purpose of capturing the county organization to be used two years later in the interest of Senator Penrose's candidacy for re-election. The Republican voters of Bucks county will not stand for Penrose and his disreputed politics. It is the Philadelphia Senator and his corrupt coterie of political manipulators that has driven Colonel Quay to the wall. Day by day they are tightening the coils around their own throats and the time is fast approaching when the honest voters of the state will remove the scab which has formed on the sore, caused by ballot thieves, jury fixers, butter frauds, and criminal office holders and seekers.

THE COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republicans of Bucks county met in mass convention on Monday and nominated a ticket that should be unitedly supported at the polls in November.

The convention was one of the largest held in many years. With one exception every district in the county was represented and registered its will in the matter of nominations.

The attempt made by Senator Penrose to defeat the present members of the Assembly met with a crushing rebuke. The Betz building junta of Philadelphia had emissaries at work in the county for a number of days endeavoring to lead a revolt against the re-nomination of Messrs. Winner, Wilkinson and Edwards. Riders were sent into the upper end of the county and the districts were visited by oily-tongued politicians in the employ of the Quaker City ring. William C. Mayne, of Bristol township, a new corner in the county and a bosom friend of Pennsylvania's only Senator was the director of the foreign movement in the lower end.

On Monday the old-time voters of the county came swarming into Doylestown from all points of the compass and fairly drenched the Penrose-Durham combination by a six to one vote.

The convention was a thoroughly representative one, most of the districts being largely represented by intelligent voters, and the result should be acceptable as the will of a majority of the Republicans of the county. The proper thing for party members to do now is to turn in and give the ticket united support on election day.

At the next session of the Legislature there will be important measures to be acted upon. A new and pure ballot system for the state, in which all good citizens are interested, will come up for consideration. The present members, who have been renominated, can be absolutely depended upon to vote right upon the subject. Bucks county is on record as opposed to ballot frauds, and corrupt legislation of every kind. That record will be perpetuated by the re-election of the Republican Assembly ticket.

By aiding the re-nomination of Messrs. Edwards, Wilkinson and Winner, the leaders of the party, not only placed themselves in harmony with the will of the people, but they have rendered Democratic victory improbable.

MONEY IN POLITICS.

Doylestown Intelligencer.

The Bristol Gazette, which professes to be an intelligent newspaper and a staunch Republican organ, has a most singular view of the Senatorial question. In its last issue, discussing the Senatorial subject, the Gazette says:

> Why should the Republicans of Bucks county engage in a fierce and bitter war which would disrupt the party from Durham to Bensalem and from the Montgomery line to the river? What would be gained in the end? The election of the entire Democratic ticket would be one of the first results. The expenditure of large corruption funds by both factions would be another. The estrangement of friends and the loss of the county to the Democrats for several years to come would also inevitably follow.

This sort of statement is unworthy of Republicanism and of newspaper intelligence. The foundation principle of the Republic is that the majority must rule. The Senatorial question, how Bucks county Legislators shall vote, should and must be submitted to the Republicans of Bucks county, for them to determine for themselves, and in this decision the majority should decide and rule and the minority must accede to the decision—always, however, with the inherent right of work and effort in behalf of their own views. Republicanism is entirely consistent with this, and when party harmony becomes of more value and importance than the prosecution of honest purposes and valuable principles, then will the first sentence of the above quoted opinion be true and not before. The second charge is an ugly one and wholly discreditable to the Republican party. If it is coming to be a question of expending corruption funds, by both factions, as is above alleged, it is time honest and non-mercenary citizens were finding another party with which to ally themselves. This alternative charge of disbursements of corruption money smirches everything it touches. It in effect says that money not men are to rule and control the Republican party. If this be true then is the institution of republican democracy an abject and complete failure; and the Republicans of Bucks county are not good citizens, but simply purchasable units in politics. If the charge be not true it is a gross and disgraceful libel upon all Republicans, as well as a defiance of law, and should be a burning shame in the columns of any professed intelligent Republican newspaper. Besides these things the loss of the county to the Democrats and even the estrangements of some heretofore political friends are matters of small moment.

The questions of vital importance are those of bitter war within the party to be fought out with money—not by men for principle—and in defiance of law. This is the charge which the Gazette makes as an alternative of failure to agree upon the Senatorial question. On the truth or falsity of the charge depends the responsibility of the Gazette. If the charge be true it is a deplorable and dangerous condition. If it be false the Gazette wantonly slanders the party. On the conditions themselves, set forth in the charge, is the danger or credit of the Republican party. If money not men is to rule, and the minority cannot accede to the majority, then is Republicanism a failure and the principle of majority rule in our Nation is a fraud. If the conditions suggested are false then is the party in the way to do good civic work and it should be encouraged to proceed in its efforts in behalf of popular government and a rule by men in behalf of the people.

Either way, the Gazette owes it to its profession and to the Republicanism it avowedly supports to make clear its allegations and to relieve or condemn the party which is involved and implicated in the charges set forth.

The Intelligencer's criticism of a statement made in the Gazette two weeks ago is re-printed in full. In reply it is not our purpose to justify the charge regarding the expenditures of corruption funds in primary elections. While the conditions pertaining to latter-day politics are to be deplored it is silly to be blind to naked facts. The Intelligencer, as well as any school boy who has given the subject the slightest thought, knows full well the manner in which political battles are fought, but our Doylestown contemporary plays well the familiar role of the hypocrite. We stated the facts and the Intelligencer assumes a sanctified air and preaches against something which on other days it endorses.

The Intelligencer has, in and out of season, enthusiastically commended the fight made against Senator Quay in the State of Pennsylvania by a cabal of millionaires. Every victory no matter how won, has been gleefully commented upon. The victory which was won by the insurgents faction in Lebanon county two years ago, where the wholesale corruption of voters occurred, was justifiable in the eyes of the dissembling editor of the Intelligencer.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been poured into the corruption pot of the reformers for the purpose of carrying county primaries. In Bradford, Lancaster, Chester, Tioga, Washington, Somerset and many other counties, dollars have met dollars in the battle for supremacy and in many cases victory was on the side of the largest fund.

We have not heard the Intelligencer scoring the victories won in Somerset, Lebanon or Washington. Such a critic as the Intelligencer is must have been acquainted with the details.

Now to come home. It is known that the political organization of Pennsylvania, known as the "insurgents," the leaders of which are John Wanamaker, William Flinn, David Martin, et al, stood willing to put five, ten or even fifteen thousand dollars into Bucks county for the purpose of defeating any Quay candidate for the Assembly nomination. On the other hand John P. Elkin, Senator Penrose and others guaranteed a fund of five thousand dollars with which to fight the "antis." If the Intelligencer did not know this it should have before it launched into the subject as it did.

It was partly because of this knowledge that both factions would in the heat of battle say and do many things which would not be done under normal conditions, that the Gazette urged that there should be no fight in the Republican ranks. There was intense feeling on both sides; the factions were wrought to a high pitch and it was greatly feared that passion would dethrone reason.

The Republicans of Bristol have not, and for years will not, forget a taste they had of factional strife. In the Second ward of the borough four years ago there was a bitter contest between the Quay and anti-Quay factions over the election of a delegate to a convention. Thousands of dollars were spent during that memorable contest. Former friends were arrayed against each other and sore spots were left which have not yet been entirely healed. That occurred in one district out of the 77. If a general fight were waged on such principles there is no telling what the outcome would be.

The Intelligencer may moralize, preach and work its conscientious dodge if it will, but such actions will not controvert stubborn facts. The Gazette presented what it believed to be a true statement of the condition of affairs. We have been plain; we have been honest.

A number of letters have been received at this office in which the writers declare that the Gazette's statement was a true index of the political conditions. One writer residing in Yardley, whose name we withhold as the communication was not intended for publication, under date of August 26, says: "The article in your last issue of the Gazette entitled 'The Political Situation in Bucks County,' has been read with special interest. You have indeed, in my humble opinion, described that situation as it actually exists. You have stated your position honestly and have assumed a dignity which is certainly a credit to the Gazette," etc. Such have been the comments heard on many sides. But it has remained for the Intelligencer and its ragged Democratic contemporary at the county seat to throw up their hands with exclamations of surprise.

The most dispicable of all creatures is the hypocritical humbug.

Editor Moser, of the Collegeville Independent, gives an on-lookers view of the Republican conflict being waged in Montgomery county. We quote as follows:

> It is a war to the knife and the knife to the hilt, with an extra turn to the handle. The Regulars gather their inspiration from the Regular organization, largely directed by Penrose and Durham, of Philadelphia, while the Insurgents are getting their cues from David B. Martin and John Wanamaker, of the same city, and neither side has a monopoly of righteousness. The stakes are big and have to do with Pennsylvania, as well as Montgomery county. The regulars are battling to retain official honor, patronage and spoils; the Insurgents are struggling to acquire, sooner or later, the same, identical ends. The situation is plain to all who have taken the pains to analyze it. Those who have been hoodooed and hypnotized by the animosities and prejudices of one faction or the other, are not in mental trim to philosophize; they are mad, and they want to fight and whip somebody or be whipped. There are more Republicans "electioneerin' for a lickin' " on top of the earth in Montgomery this year than there ever has been since the organization of the party, and a lot of them, assorted sizes, shapes, and dispositions, will get what they are electioneering for.

At the recent primaries held in Montgomery county every Republican voter was given full opportunity to register his will upon the Quay and anti-Quay question. When the votes were counted it was found that the "antis" were overwhelmed in the contest. Out of the 125 districts the regulars carried all but about 30. When the convention assembled the "insurgents" were in such small numbers that they stood in a corner and refused to participate. They will hold a convention of their own and nominate a separate ticket. The whole "insurgent" movement among our neighbors seems to be inspired by a few former Republicans who are determined to play boss even if they have to get up a side show of their own to do it. Any Republican or set of Republicans who will not make a fair and square contest with the members of his party and accept the result is not worthy the name and should be denied the privilege of participating in future councils of the party.

Two hundred local Republican papers in Kansas last week printed in their editorial columns under the heading: "His Prophecy," this statemdent made by William J. Bryan in 1896:

> "If McKinley and the Republican party are successful and put in power for the next four years, wages will be decreased, hard times will come upon us and over the land the price of wheat will go down and the price of gold will go up; mortgages on our homes will be foreclosed by the money lenders; shops and factories will close. We will export no goods and we will import from foreign lands all the goods we use; thus will ruin, want and misery be with us."

The farmers of Kansas who have prospered beyond their fondest hopes are asked to verify or contradict this prophecy.

After all the agitation which was invoked concerning the alleged English-Wanamaker blackmail incident, Mr. Watterall, who was chairman of the mass ndignation meeting declares that it has been found that there is no solid legal grounds to stand upon in the prosecution of the case. The consensus of opinion all along has been that the affair was a personal one between Mr. Wanamaker and Mr. English. The spectacular display made at the Academy of Music was worked up by the Wanamaker papers for political effect.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY POLITICS.

(Seen and heard by a Democrat.)

Bristol borough was in the hands of the Democrats on Monday last.

Howard I. James, Esq., and Michael Wheeler, are attending the Congressional conferees' convention at Pottstown, today, as delegates. Both are staunch supporters of Dr. Vanartsdalen.

The great surprise of the week in political circles is the announcement by Richard Olney, Esq., the premier of Grover Cleveland's cabinet, that he will support the cause of William Jennings Bryan.

The venerable ex-Congressman Thomas Dunn English, of Newark, the author of "Ben Bolt," is to deliver four speeches during the present campaign in advocacy of the principles of the Kansas City platform.

On Saturday last Warren Long, Esq., formally announced his candidacy for the office of District Attorney. Thomas Ross, Esq., has withdrawn in favor of Mr. Long. As both are extremely popular men, this generous action on the part of Mr. Ross relieves the delegates from an unpleasant situation.

William Yerkes, of Southampton township, has come out for legislative honors. The other candidates now in the field for the Lower end nominations are Jacob M. Winder, of Bristol borough, and Joshua Vanartsdalen, of Bristol township. Winder is by all odds the strongest man and notwithstanding the fact that Joe Broadhurst, of Langhorne, says that he cannot have it yet in all likelihood he will be the nominee.

At Pottstown today, the Congressional conferees, who were elected by the county convention in June last, meet with those chosen by the Montgomery county convention on the 4th instant, for the purpose of selecting a Congressional candidate for the Seventh district. Under the system in vogue each county is entitled to eleven conferees. It is understood that the delegation from Bucks is a unit for Dr. Vanartsdalen, of Ashbourne, Montgomery county. The representatives of Montgomery are divided; five being favorable to the candicacy of the Ashbourne physician whilst six are scattered between J.B. Larzalere and ex-Congressman Acker, of Norristown.

BEN SALEM.

FALSE PROPHET OF '96.

If the prophesies and predictions made by the Mr. Bryan had proven to be true, the gold standard, which has been in operation ever since he uttered them, would have produced the following direful results, to-wit:

It would have increased the purchasing power of the gold dollar.—(Madison Square Garden speech.

It would have been as certain to make prices fall as a stone is to fall when thrown into the air. — (Newton, Iowa, speech.)

It would have increased the debts of the people and lessened their ability to pay them.—(Baltimore speech.)

It would have made times harder and harder .—(Same speech.) It would have starved everybody except the money changers and the money owners.—(New Haven, Conn., speech.)

It would have transferred the bread which one man earns to another man who had not earned it.—(Hartford, Conn., speech.)

It would have made the rich richer and the poor poorer.—(Newark, Ohio, speech.)

It would have decreased the number who are happy and increased the number who are in distress.—(Same speech.)

It would have destroyed the hope of the toiling masses.—(Minneapolis, Minn., speech.)

It would have destroyed the opportunity to work.—(Same speech.)

It would have increased the number of idle men.—(Same speech.)

It would have decreased the volume of standard money.—(Same speech.)

It would have encouraged the hoarding of money.—(Hornelsville, N. Y., speech.)

It would have made it more and more difficult for the farmer to live.—(Madison Square Gardens peech.)

It would have injured the wage-earner.—(Same speech.)

It would have made employment less certain.—(Same speech.)

It would have discouraged enterprise.—(Same speech.)

It would have paralyzed industry.—(Same speech)

It would have lessened the ability of savings banks to collect their assets.—(Same speech.)

It would have increased the dangers of depositors losing their deposits in savings banks.—(Madison Square Garden speech.)

It would have compelled depositors in savings banks to withdraw their deposits to pay living expenses.—(Same speech.)

It would have lessened the salaries of those engaged in business occupations and would have lessened the permanency of such salaries.—(Same speech.)

It would have injured those who have permanent investments in railroad stocks and other like enterprises.—(Same speech.)

It would have injured or destroyed the manufacturers of agricultural implements, wagons and buggies.—(Springfield, Ohio, and Flint, Mich., speeches.)

It would have lessened the ability of the masses to buy goods and thereby would have lessened the number of commercial travelling men.—(Indianapolis speech to traveling men.)

It would have made it impossible for husbands and wives to pay off the mortgages on their homes.—(Minneapolis, Minn., speech to ladies.)

It would have made it necessary to advocate the closing up of our public schools.—(Monmouth, Ill., speech.)

It It would have made it more profitable to loan money or to hoard it than to invest it in enterprise or property.—(Syracuse, N. Y., speech.)

It would have made 'dearer money, cheaper property, harder times, more people out of work, more people destitute, more people desperate, more crime.—(Minneapolis speech to ladies.)

It would have lowered the standard of civilization in this country.—(Madison Square Garden speech.) It would have been writing the future in blood, crushed out by gold.—(Erie, Penn., speech.)

All these prophecies and predictions about the evils that would befall us if the gold standard were adopted have utterly failed.

Mr. Byran said in a speech delivered at Lincoln, Nebraska, July 7, 1900:

"The fight this year will be to carry out the sentiment of that song we have so often repeated, 'My Country 'tis of Thee.' If we lose, our children and our children's children will not succeed to the spirit of that song, and celebrations of the Fourth of July will pass away, for the spirit of empire will be upon us."

Convention Pick-Ups.

Shelly carried 70 of the 76 districts for District Attorney.

For the first time in years John T. Fish failed to carry his district of Falls. The two Falls went for Edwards.

There is no discount on the fact that West Bristol township was solid for Mayne and the Penrose ticket.

The little borough of Telford, which was recently overlooked by the consus supervisor, was the only unrepresented district.

The vote of the Second ward of Bristol was as follows: Winner 49, Heckler 20; Wilkinson 48, Nicholas 34; Edwards 55, Mayne 35; Shelly 60, DuBois 4.

Mahlon H. Stout made an efficient and imperturbable chairman and calmly resisted the nonsensical vociferous assaults of the Boy Orator of Bristol township.

The First ward of Bristol vote on the Assembly was 40 for the present members to 5 for Heckler, Nicholas and Mayne. The Third ward voted 74 to 15 for the old ticket.

George Nox McCain, a staff correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, was on the grounds. He declared that Bucks county has distinctly the unique system in the United States of making nominations.

The Bristol Township Republican Club's adopted motto is "We believe in Majority Rule." If the club is true to those principles Bristol township will cast a solid Republican vote for the ticket in November.

One of the incidents of the day that caused a smile was the act of Editor Fetterolf in assuming a position at the head of the Langhorne delegation in the march up the street. When at home the Fetterolfs bring up the rear.

Mr. DuBois by this time has evidently discovered the mistake made in mixing up in a factional quarrel. Even the districts that voted against the present members of the Assembly, whom Mr. DuBois antagonized, cast their votes in opposition to DuBois.

The districts that were carried for the Mayne-Penrose-Durham ticket were Attleboro, Bristol township west, Third ward Doylestown, Hulmeville, New Hope, Plumstead east, Third ward Quakertown, Perkasie, Richlandtown, Sellersville, Springfield east, Tinicum, (Delaware district), Tinicum, (Tinicum district), and Tullytown.

The most charitable view to take of Mr. Mayne's effort to prevent resolutions being referred to the committee on resolutions is that he was ignorant of the workings of the mass convention system. In order to take a vote as demanded by Mr. Mayne the great convention would have to separate into seventy-six separate district caucuses, causing the loss of at least 2 hours time, all for the sake of determing a frivolous motion.

Mr. Eastburn's dispassionate and effective argument in opposition to Mr. Mayne's motion in regard to resolutions convinced the bitterest partisan of the necessity and fairness in abiding by the rules that have governed the mass conventions for over half century. Mr. Mayne is new at the business and is doubtless worthy of forgiveness for the attempt to turn things topsy-turvey.

When the head of the Edwards procession hove into sight with Walter F. Leedom, the Bristol coal baron, in the lead, there was a ripple of excitement among the crowd in front of the Fountain House. Mr. Leedom, with head up and chest extended was mistaken for United States Senator Penrose, and for a moment it was thought that the imperial Senator had come to carry out his fight in person. The on-lookers soon discovered their error when the marching crowd of respectable business men came in review.

A Crew from Cramps.

When the new first-class battleship Alabama went to the port of New York from Cramps' shipyards on her trial trip she had on board a number of naval officers, who will be assigned to the ship when she goes into commission. Among these were Captain W. H. Brownson, who will command the ship; Lieutenant-Commander Gleaves, navigating officer; Lieutenant-Commander Badger, executive officer; Lieutenant-Commander Zane, chief engineer; Lieutenant H. B. Wilson, inspector of equipment; Lieutenant J. G. Doyle, inspector of ordnance; Assistant Naval Constructor Robinson and Assistant Surgeon J. F. Leys. These officers wore their uniforms when the vessel came into port, and many of the people who visited the Alabama while she was in drydock thought that these officers were in charge of the vessel; but they were really onlyvisitors, with no duties except to represent the Navy Department and to note the way in which the new fighting machine behaved on its trial trip.

The commanding officers and the crew of three hundred men were employes of the Cramps, taken from the various departments of the great concern. Captain R. L. Sargent was in command, and his crew, riggers, engineers, electricians, boiler makers, plumbers, pipe fitters and mechanics in all branches were all Cramp men, most of whom had made a similar trip recently on the Russian cruiser Variag.

The discipline on board was similar to that of the merchant marine, but the Alabama was really a great floating machine shop, and those on board were governed by factory rules.

On the trip to Boston the naval officers and invited guests had the best opportunity to see that the Cramp shops can furnish competent crews as well as perfect vessels, for the men on board performed all the duties of a regular crew with the exception of handling the ordnance.

From the remarks overheard it is gathered that many young men have been caught in the seductive meshes of the net waist summer girl.

GENTLEMEN:—Our family realize so much from the use of GRAIN O that I feel I must say a word to induce others to use it. If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all, but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

Practical Politics.

"They're holding meetings everywhere,"
Said the "Heeler" to the "Boss,"
"In every alley, lane and square
That one may run across;
They say that they're going to 'clean us out,'—
They're going to 'smash the ring.'—
And now they swarm to shout 'Reform!'
And all that sort of thing."
The "Boss" he winked at the "Heeler,"
And the "Heeler" chuckled sweet;
And the "Boss" said, "Yes? Well, then, I guess,
We'll have to let 'em meet."

"They've got the good folks on their list,"
Said the "Heeler" to the "Boss,"
"The great and kind philanthropist
Who speaks of gold as 'dross,'
The clergymen, the orators,
The pure of every walk,
And all the time they rail at crime,
And talk, and talk, and talk."
The "Boss" he winked at the "Heeler,"
And the "Heeler" smiled a smile;
And the "Boss" said, "Stuff! Talk's well enough,
But work is more our style."

"They have a big procession out,"
Said the "Heeler" to the "Boss,"
"And music rings and children shout,
And banners wave and toss,
And in each crowded church and hall
Great speakers cheer their souls,
As oft they tell how quick and well
They'll thrash us at the polls."
The "Boss" he winked at the "Heeler,"
And the "Heeler" grinned a grin;
And the "Boss" said, "So? But do they know
Just where to spend their 'tin'?"

"The last returns have just been read,"
Said the "Heeler" to the "Boss,"
"And we're some fifteen 'thou.' ahead,
And their's will be the loss.
The 'moral party' spent its breath,
We spent the 'long green notes;'
They talked and shirked, we simply worked,
And now we've got the votes."
The "Boss" he winked at the "Heeler,"
And the "Heeler" roared a roar;
"It seems to me," said the "Boss," "that we Have done this thing before."

It is claimed that for the perfect maturing of corn in this latitude the growing season must have an average mean temperature of 75 degrees for 90 days, or there must be an excess of 75 degrees multiplied by 90, equaling 6750 degrees of accumulated heat. Should the heat be lower, the crop will be longer in maturing.

The practice of holding family reunions is becoming more common as the years pass and are not now confined to the home coming of children on Thanksgiving or Christmas days as was the custom in the past. Nowadays the larger families, root and branch, select a time of year when the weather is pleasant for the holding of picnics and gather at some place most convenient to the largest number of relatives and friends and spend a day in social converse and reminiscence so enjoyable to those who meet but infrequently.

John M. Gray, one of Bucks county's wealthiest and most prominent retired farmers and business men, died at his home, in Forest Grove, last Thursday, aged 63 years. Mr. Gray was a son of the late Samuel Gray, of Buckingham, and was a native of that township. He was president of the Doylestown and Willow Grove Turnpike Company, the Centreville and Pineville Company, a director in the Buckingham and Doylestown Company and a stockholder in the Doylestown and Danboro Company. He was also a director in his township.

A force of employes of the Inter-State Telephone Company are engaged in stringing wires over the new system leading from Morrisville to Norristown. He is fully qualified to conduct the affairs of the bank and is very popular with its officials and patrons.

Yardley is at present is a very busy town, says the Review. The building of the bleaching factory and the construction of the trolley gives employment to a large number of people, and the town in general has the appearance of having a hustle on. The siding and freight yards at the Reading depot are unable to accommodate the incoming freight laden with building and other materials. Teamsters and laborers and mechanics are busy from early to late, and the Yardley Mills are running over time, and the merchants and other business men are also feeling the effects of the new life which the town has taken on.

For the third time in three months the depot on the Cut-off railroad at Langhorne was broken into and robbed early Monday morning. The thieves made their entrance into the building by forcing a window, opening into the waiting room. The door between the waiting room and ticket office was then completely demolished probably with an axe. All the express packages were opened and their contents rifled. Twenty tickets were taken and the cash drawer forced open. This, fortunately, contained no money. A trunk belonging to Miss Connor, of Langhorne, was broken open, and the contents scattered over the floor. Another trunk, the property of Miss Lillie Barnsley, of Newtown, had been unstrapped when the burglars were frightened off.

Catholic Church for Morrisville.

Rev. John J. McAnany, of St. Ann's Roman Catholic church, Lehigh avenue and Memphis street, Philadelphia, has been appointed by Archbishop Ryan to build a church in Morrisville. Little is known regarding the project, as the plans are being formulated in Philadelphia and the ground for the site has not as yet been purchased.

A Pennsylvanian for Governor.

J. M. Frink, of Seattle, who has been nominated by the Republicans of the state of Washington for governor, is a former Pennsylvanian, and will undoubtedly be elected by a three to five thousand majority over Governor Rogers, the present Populist incumbent. who was renominated at the Tacoma convention by the fusion forces. Mr. Frink is a native of Luzerne county, Pennsylvania, and was born January 21, 1855. His parents moved to Kansas in 1859, and in 1861 the head of the household died. The future governor of Washington, being the eldest son, took upon himself the responsibility of caring for the farm, and did it well. In 1874 he went to Washington and to Seattle in the fall of the same year. He was employed as a school teacher in the city schools and taught there and at Port Gamble for four years. In 1880 he formed a partnership with Mr. Tenny in the foundry business, and in the following year added a machine shop to the plant. The next year brought the incorporation of the Washington Iron Works, of which Mr. Frink is still president and manager. He served as member of the school board for five years and in the city council two years. In 1891 he was elected to represent the Twenty-fifth senatorial district and was re-elected in 1895.

The History of Babylon.

We may soon, says The Literary Digest, be in a position to study the lost history of Babylon, as we can now study that of Greece and Rome. In a recent lecture at the Industrial Art Museum at Berlin, Prof. Delitzch, the celebrated Orientalist and explorer, stated his hope, says Biblia (June), "that in a short time it will be possible to reconstitute the history of Babylon from its monuments. Contemporary inscriptions on monuments show that the excavators are unearthing the relics of a prehistoric epoch antecedent to the period to which we assign Abraham. The list of kings will furnish an excellent foundation for the historical reconstruction of the epoch."

This has been made possible by the discoveries of the expedition sent out by the German Oriental Society under the direction of Koldewey. Nebuchadnezzar's favorite temple has already been explored, and the excavators are now attacking "the edifice proper, in which Cyrus signed the edict authorizing the return of the Jews to their own land, and in which Alexander died."

Attended Seventy Conventions.

Joseph Swratzlander, of Yardley, was in Doylestown on Monday in attendance at the Republican county meeting. He has, during his lifetime of eighty-eight years, attended seventy of the Republican county conventions. Another man whose record of long time attendance will not easily be surpassed is Samuel B. Thatcher, of Haycock, whose record extends back to 1844, since which time he has missed but one county gathering.

Morrisville Girl Missing.

Ella, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Michael Donovan, of Morrisville, is missing and the police of Trenton have been asked to assist in locating her. Mr. Donovan, in reporting the girl's disappearance to the police, said that she had been employed at the home of Mrs. Fury, of South Broad street, Trenton. Monday evening of last week she left her place of employment saying she was going to visit her parents in Morrisville. This was the last seen of her. No reason can be given for her disappearance.

Revival Services.

EMILIE.—Revival services are in progress in the Methodist Church. The pastor, Rev. Wilmer Coffman, is being assisted by ministers of other churches. The meetings will be continued, at night, next week. On Sunday next at 9.30 a love feast will be held, and at 10.30 Presiding Elder Rev. J. R. T. Gray, D. D., will preach. In the evening there will be preaching by the pastor.

FALLSINGTON.—The Rev. J. R. T. Gray, D. D., Presiding Elder, will preach in the Methodist Church on Sunday evening next.

An Error.

The Gazette was in error two weeks ago in stating that Joseph Mathieu, the leather manufacturer, who was arrested for assault and battery in Philadelphia, was a resident of Langhorne Manor and a member of the Republican county committee. C. J. Matthews writes to the Gazette as follows: "In your issue of August 23rd, 1900, you make the statement that Joseph Mathieu, of Langhorne Manor was charged with assault and battery. Would say, Joseph Mathieu is not a resident of Langhorne Manor, and the article above mentioned apparently refers to me. As I am in no way connected with the firm of J. P. Mathieu & Co., and have not been a defendant in any assault and battery case, I desire you to make the necessary correction in the next issue of your paper."

Annual Straw Ride.

A number of Garden street young people left Bristol at 8 o'clock on Friday evening and went to Emilie on a straw ride. A rack wagon and four horses driven by S. M. Updyke, of Emilie, were used. The party stopped at the Temperance House in the little village, where refreshments were served and dancing and singing indulged in. The jolly party returned to Bristol at 2 a. m. Those present were: James Lyden, Philip O'Donnell, A. Coughlin, A. Boyle, J. Boyle, E. Burns, J. Burns, H. Collins, E. Murray, P. Larrisy, T. Schan, J. McGonigal, J. Hunter, W. Murphy, N. Swartz, J. Dougherty, G. Baker; Misses Mary Burns, Jeannette Turner, Maggie Smiley, Maggie Powers, Ella McGlynn, Mary O'Donnell, Julia Smiley, Ellie Burns, Mollie McGinley, Kate McGinley, Annie Swords, Ella Brisler, Mary Curran, Mary Dugan, Grace Brogan, Ada Grunert.

No Change Desired.

Editor of the Gazette:—Hot weather is a foe to those activities which are not subject to the law of necessity. It is not friendly to undue exertion, or to the development of new enterprises. Even religious exercises recognize the influence of dog-days, which may more happily be described as vacation days. When the mercury is high the pulse of politics is low, and it beats languidly. When cooler weather comes and grateful days, the spirits of mortals will revive, and many things will take on newness of life.

There will not always be apathy in the political world. If there is not always at present much apparent activity in this direction, there is, no doubt, a great deal of earnest and wholesome thinking. People are learning something day by day, thanks to the wonders of cheap printing and the diversified news agencies. The great question now is, which way will the majority of voters vote? Many a business man in particular, and people in general, would like to know. There is a great deal of confidence felt and expressed in the success of McKinley, with all that his name implies. Let us hope that this confidence rests on solid ground. There is reason for its existence, and the prospect cheers.

It seems incredible that the people should desire a change from that which is, with all its grand conditions, to something else with its dark uncertainities, and all the untoward things which the wisest heads consider inevitable. That wretched bugaboo called imperialism cannot shroud with oblivion that dangerous heresy known as "16 to 1," the triumph of which would be the triumph of calamity. The people of the land, the great, potential body that comprise the vast public, are not giving themselves any anxiety about this airy apparition, this intangible thing that has been invented to scare big children. They are thinking of other things, those things which are intimately connected with their personal welfare.

What has become of that other phantom, the Caesarism of the days of Grant? Gone to the gloomy shades of departed ghosts, and in due time (for every dog has his day) this new-born ghost will follow, and people will wonder why there was so much eloquent noise about it. Scratch a genuine anti-imperialist and you will find a crank. Cranks, like the poor, are always with us, and they are never so happy as when they are astride of some animated hobby. Notwithstanding all the talk and bluster that is indulged in about imperialism, it does not seem to be bothering the brains of busy people, for they know that there is nothing in it. This is not the case with a clipped dollar, which is a legitimate object of dread; and if the government should wed itself to the "16 to 1" feature in Bryanism, that would be the character of the offspring. We now have the gold standard, the vital bed-rock of universal enterprise, and we do not want that financial policy which predicts decay. Is not prosperity worthy of consideration? What relation does this bear to the gold standard? What relation does it bear to the free coinage of silver on a debased reckoning? Imperialism, with its vague meaning, sinks into insignificance in comparison with the tangible things that should bestir our thoughts and call forth our energies. Prosperity is not to be ignored, nor are the causes which lead to prosperity to be set aside and made to take a subordinate place while the jugglery of imperialism goes on. The hollow babble about this dreamy moonshine, however high-flown the words may be, is far from being as eloquent as the solid reality of a full dinner-pail. Most men are too wise to be led captive by a false light or some will o' the wisp, but would rather be guided by the lamp of experience in paths of wisdom that lead to a happy and prosperous home life. KAPPA.

Bristol, Pa.

If it is true that one may be known by the company he keeps, the United States is all right. Contrariwise Mr. Bryan would put us in very bad company. The Chinese Boxers and the pirates of Tripoli are his models. The Republican party stands in the front ranks of all the most progressive and prosperous nations of the world. The Bryanites are allied in politics with the Tagal cut-throats and in finance with the semi-civilized nations. Where do you stand, Mr. Voter?

If you want photo jewelry of any kind send a postal and I will call with samples. The miniatures are far superior to the usual kind, as the photo is reproduced on celluloid, and burnished. They will not fade and are almost indestructible. W. IRVING DAVIS, Box 38, Bristol, Pa.

The National Farm School.

The students of the Farm School at Doylestown have formed an association for the purpose of publishing a school paper, which is to be known as the Students' Prospect. The paper is to be issued monthly from October 1. The editorial staff will be composed of the following members, chosen from the different classes: Editor-in-Chief, Solomon Pizer; Assistant Editor-in-Chief, Morris Lebowitz; Farm Work, Charles Holler; Exchange, W. J. Serlin; Local and Personal, Morris Mitzman; Literary, H. S. Rivitz; Athletic, L. Dannebaum; Business Manager, George W. Ibaugh.

Considerable time is being devoted at this season of the year to the laying out and building of walks and drives about the grounds, a greater portion of this work being under the direction of Professor Charles T. Harrison, Road Expert from the Department of Agriculture, Washington.

The farm house has recently been repaired and fitted up as a home for the Dean and family. A new fifty foot tower windmill has just been erected to furnish the water supply to the stables.

Immense Apple Yield.

According to estimates based on reports from all parts of the United States the apple crop this fall will be one of unusual size. Unless some unforseen accident occurs, the crop will amount to about 100 million barrels.

This is about three times the crop of last year, which was considered a pretty heavy crop, compared with the average of former years. But this is not the only wonderful thing about the year 1900, as far as this fruit crop is concerned. Heretofore a heavy crop in the eastern states was always accompanied by a failure of the crop in the west, and vice versa.

This year, however, the crop will be heavy both east and west. Europe also is looking forward to a heavy crop, and it will not be surprising to see a big slump in the price of this fruit.

Twenty years ago New York state supplied the whole country and partly the markets of Europe with apples, but today the output of New York state would not be nearly sufficient to supply the demand.

A large part of the apple crop goes to supply the tables of the ocean liners, but the largest purchasers in the market outside the apple eating public, are the large pie factories. The best prices for apples are obtained in the months of December, March, April and May. In the summer there is little demand for this fruit, as berries and melons monopolize the market.

New Trolley to Willow Grove.

The rumors which were current concerning the intention of the Union Tracon Company, of Philadelphia, were planning to build an electric railway from Germantown and Chestnut Hill to Willow Grove Park, has been confirmed by granting of a charter at Harrisburg on Thursday to the Philadelphia, Glenside and Willow Grove Railway Company, Philadelphia, to build a line through Cheltenham and Abington township, Montgomery county, a distance of six miles. The capital stock is $100,000, and the President is William T. B. Roberts, the well-known builder, who resides at Ogontz.

Mr. Roberts is known to represent the Elkins and Widener interests in the real estate operations at Ogontz, Glenside and Willow Grove. Last week he took title to the C. H. R. Trieble's farm at Willow Grove for the purpose of completing the right of way for the new trolley line, which will run upon private property through Cheltenham and Abington township giving Willow Grove Park another outlet to Philadelphia. The line will run nearly parallel with the Plank Road turnpike, and would have used the thoroughfare but for opposition of Millionaire Harrison, of Glenside, who has secured control of the pike and is opposed to a trolley line passing his handsome property. Several months ago the almost complete right of way to Glenside was obtained. From that point the route is through Glenside farms, Hillside cemetery, and private property near Hillside, then to the Willow Grove properties already owned by the traction syndicate. It is hoped to have the line in operation next summer.

An Analysis of Woman.

"Woman," said the old codger during one of his meditative spells, "is a perpetual 'paradox, a chronic conundrum without an answer, an unknown quantity possessed of unexpected possibilities, a perennial prize package of peculiar potentialities, a conventicle of characteristic contradictions and an amaranthine aggregation of other attributes which are not alliterative.

"She is man's greatest earthly blessing and the cause of most of his misery. She is his chief inspiration to the achievement of all that is good, grand and glorious in this world and at the same time a labor saving device to help him make a fool of himself. She soothes his tired nerves with the coo of her gentle voice, but she always has the last word in every controversy with him and, incidentally, about 97 per cent. of the preceding conversation. She brings him into the world and in a few years later talks him to death.

"Most of man's trouble is caused by woman, but so deftly does she pile the load on him that whenever his burden of trouble is lifted he wanders uneasily about hunting for more; otherwise there would be a very few second wives. She will cheerfully go to the stake for the truth's sake and lie about her age without even being asked. She will grow weary of an indulgent husband, but will cleave unto death to the man who beats her regularly. She will break her heart because a man does what she don't want him to do and love him all the better for so doing.

"She scorns all advice in the selection of a husband, but takes two other women along to help her pick out a hat. The less actual comfort to be obtained from a thing the more enjoyment a woman gets out of its possession. At 16 she is a young woman; at 25, if still unmarried, she is a girl. She will face the grim spectre of death without a tremor and swoon at the sight of a mouse. The only time she ever does what you expect her to do is when you expect her to do just what you don't expect her to do. The sole reason why she does anything is simply because she don't know why she does it. She jumps at conclusions and always lands on them squarely, for the simple reason that when the conclusion skips to one side, thinking to avoid her, it gets exactly in her way. She is the dearest thing in all the world and the most aggravating. She is as she is, and that's all there is to do about it. The only man who ever fully understands a woman is the man who understands that he don't understand her and has got sense enough to let it go at that."—Puck.

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

Are You a Farmer?

Under the Wilson-Gorman law which Bryan helped to frame and pass the loss in value of farm products was $4,283,000,000. Under the Dingley law the increase in value of farm products has been $6,358,000,000.

Are You a Butcher?

It is estimated that the masses are eating twice as much meat as they were in 1895, and the wealthy are paying half as much again for lamb, porterhouse steaks and choice cuts of beef.

Are You a Manufacturer?

You exported in 1893 only $158,000,000 worth of manufactured goods. Under the Dingley law you exported during the year ending June 30, 1900, $432,000,000 worth.

Are You a Cigar Dealer?

Twice as many cigars are being consumed now as were smoked in the Democratic times of four years ago.

Are You a Barber?

Those full beards of hard times have been cut off, and the happy, prosperous man wants a shave two, three and four times a week now, and not so many men are shaving themselves.

THE MAIL SHOOTS.

Wonderful Stories They Tell in the Big Skyscrapers.

A graphic idea of the number of people housed in a great modern office building and of the amount of business transacted in it might be gathered from watching the mail shoot leading down from the upper floors to the mail box placed in the hall of the building on the ground floor. Here for example is a great building with 1,000 rooms, of which there are now occupied about 900, the number of persons in the building, including tenants and their clerks and bookkeepers and stenographers and typewriters and other employees, numbering about 3,000.

A town of 3,000 population would send out daily a considerable amount of mail matter; the tall building has a population of 3,000, not made up as the town's population would be, of people of all ages, from children to old age, many of them not writing letters, or writing infrequently, but practically made up of adults only, most of them having occasion to write many letters and all of them writing more or less. It is probable that the mail matter sent out daily by the people assembled under this roof would equal if it did not exceed that sent from a city of 25,000 people.

The shoot in the big building, with an opening through which letters may be dropped on every floor, has on the ground floor, where it ends in the big mail box, a glass front; through that stretch of the shoot the letters can be seen as they fall, to disappear at the end of it, in the end. And they are always falling. They cannot be heard, but they may be seen all the time. If one stands in the hall of the tall building and looks around, out of curiosity, his eye is sure to be fixed by this mail shoot, with the silently but constantly dropping letters. There may be intervals of seconds when they do not come, but such intervals, when they do occur, are of but a few seconds duration and often they come in flurries, like great snowfalls chasing one another thickly.

To stand and watch them gives one a new idea of the number of persons housed under one roof in the modern tall building and their manifold busy occupations.—New York Sun.

QUARLES HELPED HIM.

But He Had to Pay For His Fish on That Occasion.

When Senator Quarles of Wisconsin was a student at Racine college, he had for classmate a young man who was more attentive to piscatorial pursuits than he was to his studies. Consequently he relied upon Quarles to coach him at recitations. One of the requirements was an original essay from each member of Quarles' class once a fortnight. The piscatorial chum had drawn on Quarles for papers till Quarles thought it time to call a halt, and one day he refused. His chum had a big fishing expedition and pleaded earnestly for one more essay.

"What do I get?" asked Quarles.

"Half the fish," was the reply.

"All right," said Quarles, "I'll help you out once more."

On the afternoon for essays the fisherman student took his place, and when he was called he stood and read in the most solemn manner "Lochiel's Warning." His voice never changed from start to finish. Lochiel and the wizard were one and the same to the reader. The class suppressed its laughter, seeing that the professor never changed a muscle. After the reading the professor asked:

"Mr. A., do you wish the class to understand that you offer this as original?"

"Certainly, sir. Entirely so," was the reply.

"There is a striking similarity between your paper and the poem of Campbell on the same subject. Have you ever read Campbell?"

"Which Campbell?"

"Thomas Campbell, the poet."

"No, sir."

"If you will come to my room after the class is dismissed, I will show you the poem."

"You had better show it to Joe Quarles," said Mr. A., who realized by this time that he had been victimized, and turning to Quarles, he said: "If you get any fish today, you pay for 'em. Understand?"—Chicago Tribune.

Why Hair Does Not Curl.

Each hair is provided with a gland and a muscle. The size of the gland varies considerably in different individuals and from any observations appears larger and better developed in the negro race.

Straight hair is always circular in section and is usually thicker than curly hair, which is ribbonlike and fine, the finest human hair being met with in the Bush and Andaman races. These facts have a most important bearing on the subject. In order that the muscle may act as an erector of the hair it is necessary that the hair must be sufficiently strong to resist the tendency to bend. If the hair is so weak as to bend before the action of the muscle, the leverlike tendency is nullified.

When the hair is fine and ribbonlike, the action of the muscle bends it into a curve, and this is the reason why the hair assumes a curly form.

Moral Bookkeeping.

The Chinese are perhaps the most practical people on earth. A curious system of moral bookkeeping adopted by many shows this feature of the national character in a very curious light. There are books inculcating the price of "virtue," and in these a regular debtor and creditor account is opened, in which an individual charges himself with all his bad acts and credits himself with all his good ones, and the balance between the two exhibits his moral position at any given time.

At one place in China where there was no inn I slept in a room with a coffin which had been unburied for five years because the geomancers had not decided on a lucky site or date for the interment, and for the whole time incense had been burned before it morning and evening.—From Mrs. J. F. Bishop's "The Tangtze Valley."

Dutch Funerals as They Used to Be.

Funerals at Amsterdam and at other large towns are far from pompous. Among the lower ranks in town and country all who claim the slightest acquaintance with the deceased follow the body to the grave. They then return to pay their respects to the widow, who provides liquor for them, and after partaking of three or four glasses each they all depart, except the relatives and friends of the family, who remain to revel. At this feast the nearest relative presides, bumpers are drunk to the repose and welfare of the defunct and to the prosperity of the living, until all griefs are drowned in gin and beer. Songs—decent, ludicrous and vicious—succeed; music then strikes up; the widow leads off the dance, which, with boisterous amusements, is continued until the day dawns. In Overysell these funeral festivities were carried to so extravagant a length that the authorities interfered and strictly forbade them.—Scottish American.

Fiji Folk Eat Dirt.

Whereas the Fiji islanders used to eat their kind and persons of any other kind that came in their way, they now have taken to eating earth. It certainly is a pleasant change from the old ways, at least for those persons who otherwise would be fried, baked or broiled. It is the women who like best this new eatable. The earth is soft and in color a cross between a gray and a pink. It is supposed to be a decomposed volcanic ash. The coolies from India, whose labor is employed on the islands, like the earth, and they eat it greedily.

Russian Tea.

The Russian mode of brewing tea is to make a strong essence by infusing a large quantity of tea in a small supply of water, and a little is put into a glass, which is then filled with hot or cold water, as desired. The true Russian never puts sugar into his cup. He bites a piece as he sips his tea.

He Can't Believe It.

He's blowing with all his might and can barely stir the recording hand from zero. There's many a big, healthy looking man who is weak in the lungs. Probably half or two-thirds of his lung surface barely knows the contact of oxygen. He's the kind of man, who, when a cough attacks him, goes galloping down the road toward consumption. Many such a man has found strength and healing for weak lungs and tissues lacerated by coughing and drained by hemorrhages, in the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The healing power of this medicine in pulmonary diseases seems little short of marvelous at times, so extreme are the conditions which it cures. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol, and no narcotics.

"When I started to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mr. A. F. Novotny, of New York, N. Y., Box 1437, "I had a regular consumptive cough of which I was afraid, and everybody cautioned me and warned me concerning it. I was losing weight rapidly, was very pale and had no appetite, whatever. Now my condition is changed entirely. I do not cough at all, have gained eight pounds in weight, have recovered my healthy color, and my appetite is enormous. I can recommend your medicine to everybody who may be in need of the same, as it is a sure cure."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure constipation.

HE WOULDN'T TELL.

Firmness Which Brought an Employee a Raise of Salary.

"A little incident occurred in our establishment the other day," said a prominent local merchant, "that carried a moral which I would like to see impressed upon every young man entering business life. Not long ago I employed a clerk who had been discharged from another house in the same line. I knew him to be competent, and a little inquiry satisfied me that his dismissal was due to a petty conspiracy among some jealous fellow employees. So I engaged him at a good salary, and he has given thorough satisfaction. A few days ago one of our staff was anxious to know what concessions were made by the other house to a certain customer in a neighboring city, and he went to this young man for the information.

"The clerk hesitated and looked distressed and finally asked to be excused from replying. 'I know the facts, of course,' he said, 'but it is strictly a confidential matter, and I don't think I ought to divulge it to a rival firm.' The department head who questioned him took offense at his position, which I am sure he would not have done had he given the subject any thought, and reminded him, pretty sharply, that he had been summarily discharged and owed no allegiance to the other establishment. Nevertheless the young man stood firm, and the matter was reported to me. I at once complimented him on his sense of honor and raised his salary, which took him completely off his feet, as he had fully expected to be told to go.

"I wish the importance of cultivating and encouraging such standards was better understood. There are few things more dangerous to the average business house than the thoughtless tattling of employees—not necessarily discharged employees, but men who are holding good positions and who enjoy the full confidence of their superiors. Every establishment has secrets. I don't mean shady secrets, but things of a private character, which are as much the exclusive property of the house as the stock on the shelves. The majority of the clerks obtain more or less inkling into such matters, and the more important the subject the more likely they are to blab it to some outsider. Every employee ought to be made to understand that the affairs of his house and the affairs of his employers are things he has no more right to give away than he would have a right to give away their merchandise. I have observed that young men who proceed on this principle are pretty certain to win esteem and success."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

TURNED THE TABLES.

His Lecture on Her Carelessness Did Duty Both Ways.

"Women are careless creatures," said the man in a superior tone. "It's a wonder to me sometimes they don't lose their own heads. The idea of your losing that beautiful ring. It's absurd."

"So it is," acquiesced the woman meekly. "It almost broke my heart, too, for it held my lucky stone."

"Serves you right," said the man shortly.

"By the bye," asked the woman after a pause and with the idea of getting off of disagreeable ground, "have those new shirts of yours about which you were telling me come home yet?"

"Er—no," replied the man slowly.

"Why not? I thought you told me three weeks ago that they were due?"

"Well, they were," admitted the man reluctantly, "but the fellow hasn't brought them."

"Why don't you go and ask about them, then?" demanded the woman just as if she had a right.

"Well, the fact is," her companion answered, with a great show of candor, "I didn't quite catch his name, and I don't know his address, so I thought I'd wait until he brought them."

"Oh, so if he doesn't choose to bring them you'll never get them?"

"Ye-es, I suppose so."

"I'll wager you don't know the name or address of your laundress either."

"I don't believe I do."

"Well," said the woman, with a high and mighty air of disdain, "it's a wonder to me you don't lose your head. It's incredible how careless men can be. I really am surprised that a person of your intelligence"— But the man had left the room, and she was talking only to the empty air.—Baltimore News.

Particular About His Shoes.

A western couple who were on a visit to New York for the first time put up at the Waldorf-Astoria during their stay in this city, and what was left of their first day in New York they largely devoted to viewing the decorations of the hotel. The myrtle room, the Astor gallery and the great ballroom were viewed by them, and the magnificence of the appointments and opulent decorations left them both breathless. They said little, however, in comment, but that awe was one of the feelings that what they had witnessed gave rise to was evidenced by the husband, who, upon retiring for the night, when he was asked by his faithful spouse if, according to his usual custom, he was not going to put his shoes outside to be blackened, emphatically replied: "Not much. If I did, they'd gild them."—New York Tribune.

Had a Hand In It.

When the Rev. Dr. J. T. Ward was president of Western Maryland college, some of the students stole the molasses cans from the kitchen and poured streams of the treacle down the whole of the banisters that led from the sky parlor to the basement. Dr. Ward got up very early the next morning, and as he went down the steps he gathered a handful of the molasses. The faculty sat in solemn session, but not an inkling could they find as to the identity of the miscreants. Suddenly the humor of the thing broke upon the doctor, and he said: "Gentlemen, I may as well confess. I had a hand in it."

DON'T CROWD.

Don't crowd; this world is large enough
For you as well as me;
The doors of all are open wide;
The realm of thought is free.
Of all earth's places, you are right
To choose the best you can,
Provided that you do not try
To crowd some other man.

What matter though you scarce can count
Your piles of golden ore,
While he can hardly strive to keep
Gaunt famine from the door?
Of willing hands and honest hearts
Alone should men be proud!
Then give him all the room he needs,
And never try to crowd.

Don't crowd, proud miss! Your dainty silk
Will glisten none the less
Because it comes in contact with
A beggar's tattered dress.
This lovely world was never made
For you and me alone;
The pauper has a right to tread
The pathway to a throne.

Don't crowd the good from out your heart
By fostering all that's bad,
But give to every virtue room—
The best that may be had.
Be each day's record such a one
That you may well be proud;
Give each his right, give each his room,
And never try to crowd.

BROKEN SUSPENDERS.

Men Who Would Rather Tie Them Up Than Buy New Ones.

"It's funny," said a Park row haberdasher, "but it's true that 50 per cent of the men of New York are going about with broken suspenders. I've known men worth millions of dollars who neglected to purchase suspenders until their attention was called to the fact that they needed them. The other day a man came in here to buy some neckwear. While he was waiting to be served he kept tugging at a suspender button on his trousers. As the perspiration kept rolling down his neck he bit his lips and mumbled something that sounded like cuss words. He finally asked me if I could give him a piece of twine. When I got it for him, he unbuttoned his waistcoat and proceeded to tie together the parts of an old suspender.

"I'll sell you a new pair for a quarter," I remarked, pointing to a bunch of new suspenders. Continuing, I told him we had some beauties for half a dollar and better ones for a dollar. He said nothing, but continued the work of tying up his broken suspender. Finally I thrust a box of suspenders in front of him, and he reached for a pair.

"'Thank you,' he said, and he proceeded to take off his coat and waistcoat. Then he threw his old suspenders on the floor, and as he fastened on the new ones he said they felt fine. He told me that he had been feeling uncomfortable for a week and didn't really know the cause of it until he discarded the old suspenders.

"'Unless my wife buys a pair for me at Christmas time,' he said, 'I never think about it and wear those I have on until they actually fall off. I know thousands of wealthy men who are like me in that respect. The other day when I called upon a friend at the Waldorf-Astoria he was engaged repairing his suspenders with a piece of wire. Strange to say, he never thought of sending his valet for a new pair, although he was paying $50 a day for a suit of rooms on the fourth floor.'

"That fellow," continued the haberdasher, "is a sample of New York's business men. They'll invest thousands of dollars in stocks and bonds, but forget about investing a quarter in suspenders. Most New Yorkers wait until they get a pair as a Christmas or birthday present. German-Americans living in New York, as a rule, get suspenders for Easter Monday; Irish-Americans get presents of suspenders on Easter Sunday morning; Italian-Americans who have made New York their home get new suspenders at Christmas time."

"And what about native New Yorkers?" asked a bystander.

"Oh," said the haberdasher, "they get new ones when the string breaks!"—New York Sun.

Making Him Whole.

"It takes the glorious old west to do business," said the man with the alligator grip, as he boarded the train at St Paul. "We of the east are not in it a little bit."

"Anything to relate?" queried one of the passengers as he woke up.

"Just a few words. I traveled from New York to Chicago with a staving looking girl. At Buffalo I was gone on her. At Detroit we were engaged. As we reached Chicago she had set the date. I returned home, wrote her 320 love letters, and came out here to get married."

"And what?"

"She decided that she would marry another. She estimated the value of my time at $500, the worth of my letters at $300 and my broken heart at $200, and drew me a check for $1,000, and here it is. Gave her a receipt in full to date, kissed her goodby, and there you are and here am I. There's but one way to do business, and the west knows all about it. Yes, check for a thousand, and how many of you gentlemen will smoke a Henry Clay at my expense?"—Buffalo Courier.

Clumsy Fellow.

"Some people," said the timid man, "are criminally reckless. Now, I think, the man who jumps on a moving train is a fool."

"Well, if he isn't one," replied the other, "he feels like a fool when the woman to whom it belongs looks at him as if she'd like to chew him up."—Exchange.

If a man was a generous uncle to his sister's children before he married, she always looks upon his children as interlopers.—Atchison Globe.

Inquisitive people are the funnels of conversation. They do not take in anything for their own use, but merely to pass it to another.
